

ALLYSON HALPERIN

Allyson (Ally) Halperin serves as the Director of Development for ADL Florida. Prior to ADL, she was Director of Development at the Zoo Miami Foundation. Her previous experience includes fundraising for higher education and scientific research at Tulane University, Stony Brook University, and the American Committee for the Weizmann Institute of Science. At Tulane she helped develop and advance their reunion giving program; managed and expanded the Newcomb Institute's Director's Advisory Council and the Institute's philanthropic efforts; and collaborated across multiple schools and units to close major gifts addressing the university's priorities. At Weizmann she assisted with regional growth and strategic planning and facilitated major and planned gifts focusing on brain research, new scientists, and discretionary funds.

Ally is a Certified Fundraising Executive (CFRE) and an active Rotarian. She holds three degrees from Tulane University: an MBA in Strategy and Organizational Leadership, a BFA in Stage Management and Design, and a BA in Political Science.
